

Observatoire Politique de L'Amérique latine et de Caraïbes (OPALC)

Founded in 2007, OPALC is a political observatory specialized in Latin America and the Caribbean. It brings together a group of teachers, researchers and students from Sciences Po and other partner institutions. It is integrated into CERI for its scientific activities (notably its research seminars and its annual publication, LAPO) and acts autonomously for its other missions.

Led by an Executive Board in charge of the coordination and development of the project, OPALC also includes a network of collaborators working in thematic sections, carrying out electoral observation missions, or analyzing the political news of the countries.
