The EU Coalition Explorer presents the results of the EU28 Survey contucted by ECFR in the 28 member states of the European Union. It illustrates the expert opinions of several hundred respondents who work on European policy in governments and think tanks.

The explorer creates a visual understanding of the views held by Europe's professional political class – information that otherwise is not available to policy makers or the public.

In four chapters on preferences, influence, essential partners and policies, the EU Coalition Explorer shows the potential for future coalition building between the EU member states.

The document can be used as an interactive tool to locate the EU's political center – or centers – from which a more capable and cohesive European Union can be built.

Preferences

In the first chapter of the survey we asked experts about their preferences in working with other EU member states.

We wanted to know which other countries their government would generally contact first or most often on EU matters, which member states share many of their own country's interests, and which have been most responsive or easy to work with.

Finally, we asked which other governments or EU member states have disappointed the respondents' own government.

For each question in this section experts could select up to five countries except their own.

Influence

In the second chapter we asked experts to rank all EU member states according to their influence on EU policies in the past five years.

The first three questions asked experts to rank the big six EU member states on their overall policy influence, followed by their influence on fiscal policy as well as foreign, security and defence policy.

We also wanted to know which of the smaller affluent EU member states are the most and the least influential.

Lastly, we also asked experts to rank the remaining 15 EU member states according to their influence on EU policy.

Partners

In this chapter we asked experts which countries they see as essential partners in driving forward developments in four major policy areas.

Experts were asked to name their government's preferred partners in foreign and development policy, security and defence policy, economic and social policy, and fiscal policy.

For the four questions in this section the responses were not limited to a maximum number of countries.

Policies

This chapter explores the coalition building potential in the EU on a general level and on specific policy areas.

We first wanted to know which EU member states are seen as being committed to deeper integration and how much importance is assigned to coalitions.

We also asked respondents about their preferred level of decision making in sixteen different policy areas. Respondents could choose between the EU as a whole, coalitions of countries, or the national level. This question was also put to a census representative sample of more than 10,000 Europeans from all 28 EU member states.

Why did you conduct a survey on EU coalition building?

Europe's capacity to act collectively has become an increasingly critical issue as both the importance of intergovernmental decision making and the level of political fragmentation have grown over the past years.

Against this backdrop a debate has started in member state capitals and the EU as to how the Union can evolve and move forward.

The survey and this presentation of its results aim to inform the debate on how a more capable and cohesive European Union can be built.

Why are coalitions important?

A multi-speed Europe of differentiated integration with a progressive core and an associated periphery could serve as a template for future cooperation and solidarity within the European Union and Europe at large.

With our survey and this results explorer we want to present the coalition potentials between European countries – the ones that already exist and those that may have been overlooked due to lack of data and accessible visualization.

Why did you invite "experts" to answer the questions?

The label "expert" is intentionally used to describe our survey. In contrast to public opinion polls with national representative samples, our survey aims to capture the expertise of policy professionals.

The views of Europe's political class, i.e. – the professionals inside and outside government who work directly on policy or follow politics as expert observers, – are central for understanding the dynamics that shape cooperation in the EU.

How and when was the survey conducted?

We used an anonymous online questionnaire in which every question was mandatory to complete the survey. The invitations were sent by email to foreign ministries, government and parliament offices, think tanks, research institutions, journalists and other organizations working on European affairs. On our request, a number of recipient institutions and individuals kindly distributed the invitation within their professional networks or departments.

The survey opened shortly after the British referendum on EU membership in late June 2016 and closed in mid-September 2016.

What is the EU Coalition Explorer?

The EU Coalition Explorer is an interactive data explorer presenting the results of the EU28 Survey on coalition building in the European Union.

It is an open resource to explore the survey results for the EU as a whole, for selected country groups, and for individual member states. The EU Coalition Explorer is structured in four main chapters: Preferences, Influence, Partners, and Policies.

The EU Coalition Explorer is part of the Rethink: Europe project of ECFR and Stiftung Mercator. To learn more visit:

www.ecfr.eu/rethinkeurope

How do I use the Explorer?

The EU Coalition Explorer can be read page by page or by using the hyper-linked menus on each page.

The menu along the bottom of the page displays the explorer's central chapters. By clicking on 'Chapters' you can jump directly to any of the 17 survey questions.

Sub menus on the left allow for browsing of the detailed results from each chapter.

How can I read the illustrations in the influence chapter?

In this chapter we asked survey participants to rank groups of EU member states according to their influence on EU policy.

For each rank, a graphic containing coloured rectangles of varying sizes shows how many respondents gave each country the corresponding rank. The coloured rectangles are shown in decreasing order of received votes from left to right.

In cases where the number of votes are equal the countries are listed in alphabetical order.

Can I access the survey data?

Our complete data set, additional analysis, and country reports can be accessed free of charge:

Respondents' Nationalities

A total of 421 experts participated in the survey. Each respondent had to indicate which country he or she was working for or on. This allows for analysis of the survey results by nationality. The sample sizes shown on the left vary across the 28 member states of the European Union.

Participation was highest at the beginning of the survey since not all respondents completed the questionnaire to the last question.

The number of respondents per country is shown on all results pages of this document.

Respondents' Professional Positions

Given the topic and scope of the questionnaire we also wanted to know which work affiliations respondents had and asked them to name their professional position within their member states.

While each national sample varies in its composition of professional affiliations, the majority of survey respondents are politically active, either in government, parliament or political parties.

The other significant group of participants identified as working in think tanks or academia.

Respondents' Policy Expertise

Lastly, survey respondents differ in their policy expertise. While participants may work in several particular policy fields we asked them to name the one general area with which they felt most familiar.

Again, national samples vary in composition. Overall, seven out of ten respondents said they either worked in European affairs in general or in foreign, security or defence policy.

One in ten survey participants named issues falling in the domains of economic, single marked, trade, energy or environment policy. The remaining respondents fall into one of the other five categories.

Five Country Groups

Results are not only presented for individual EU member states, but also for five country groups. The illustration shows each group's composition, the overlap between them, and the countries that do not fall into any of the five groups.

The impact of country groups on the politics of the EU and European integration at large has been changing over time and has often depended on the policy issue at stake. Some groups are more formalized or institutionalized than others.

Group data is provided by combining the individual national samples of each group. The EU Coalition Explorer includes this data to provide an additional layer of information on the potential for coalition building among the EU28.

The EU Powerhouse

The term "Big Six" refers to France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Poland and the UK. These countries are considered major European powers.

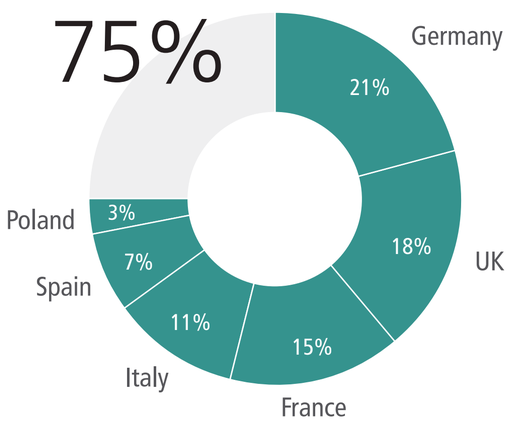

The EU Coalition Explorer offers tailored results for the Big Six for every survey question. After Brexit, the group will eventually turn into the Big Five. Even without the UK, it will continue to be the EU powerhouse.

The EU Pioneers

The term "Founding Six" refers to Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands. As signatories to the 1957 Rome Treaty they created what has become the European Union.

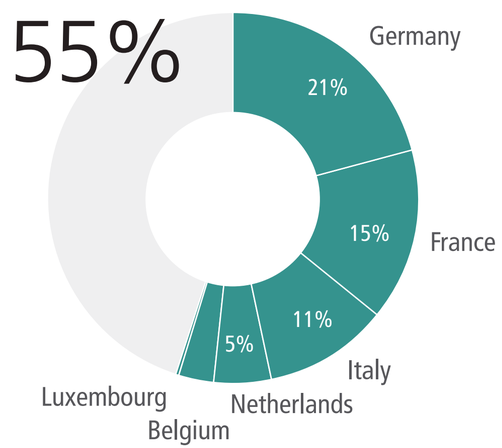

With the Franco-German partnership at its centre the Founding Six is the oldest group within the EU. It continues to have significant leverage and makes up about half the EU's population, GDP, and defence spending.

Strength in Numbers

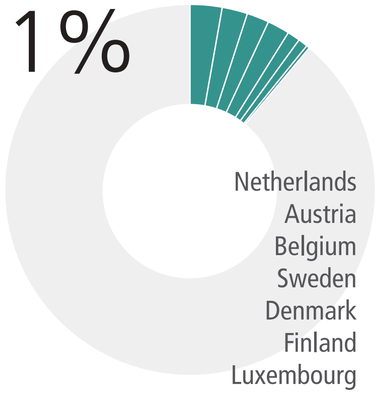

The term "Affluent Seven" refers to the group of seven countries consisting of Austria, the three Nordic EU members of Denmark, Finland, and Sweden, and the Benelux countries.

This group has special economic clout among the EU28. Each one of the seven maintains an employment ratio of at least 10 to 1. In addition, the group's disposable income per capita is significantly above the averages of both the EU and the Big Six.

Mediterranean Shores

The term "Southern Seven" refers to the group of seven countries consisting of Cyprus, France, Greece, Italy, Malta, Portugal and Spain.

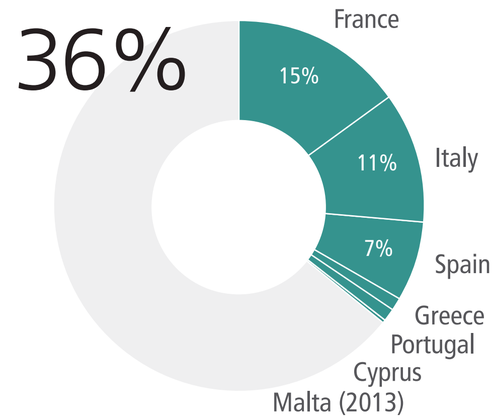

Despite being disparate in size, the countries in this group share socio-economic similarities. In recent years political initiatives have attempted to institutionalize this group. The Southern Seven have been particularly affected by the Eurozone debt crisis and increasing migration to Europe.

The New East

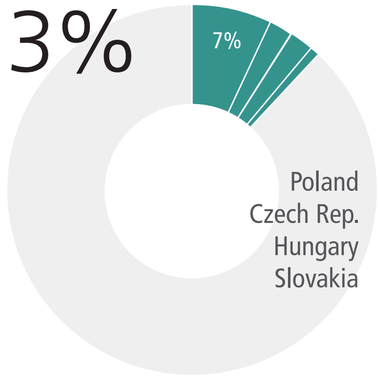

The term "Visegrád Four" refers to the group of countries consisting of the Czech Republic, Hungary, Poland and Slovakia. All four joined the European Union together in 2004.

More frequently than other groups the Visegrád Four act as a political coalition within the European Union. Their cooperation is based on common cultural values, history and a similar outlook on economic and security policy.
